During the internship, Edijs Šenbergs got familiar with our internal workflow, task documentation, coordination process, and the tools used by the team. He was willing to take on assigned tasks and followed guidance carefully. His technical knowledge is still developing, but he showed a good learning attitude, asked questions when needed, and improved through feedback and practice. Edijs communicated well with colleagues, worked well with the team, and was also willing to help guide other interns. Overall, his practical skills are solid for this internship stage, with room to keep improving his technical depth, consistency, and independent problem solving.
